Carnegie Mellon University — School of Architecture

BRIAN EVANS is Professor and Head of Urbanism at the Glasgow School of Art, Director of the Glasgow Urban Lab and leader of UN Charter Centre in Glasgow. For 25 years Brian was a partner of Gillespie, the international urban designers and landscape architects (Glasgow & London) leading projects in 20 countries and winning over 50 national and international awards. Dr Evans has published some 20 books and over 50 articles on urbanism and landscape design.

Towards the Knowledge City: Reflections of a Design Nomad Brian Evans will reflect on 30 years of working with European cities and landscapes in practice, academia and public service most recently with the UN through a series of themes including the spaces of life, cities of the mind, the Thompson 'Ten', the proto-knowledge city and the super-urbanities of the north.
